

Edmund F. & Virginia B. Ball Caribbean Marine Ecology Camp

Scholarship Application

Programme Information

Programme dates: 13th - 20th August 2019

Spend a week scuba diving and snorkelling at one of the world's most stunning reefs and learn about tropical marine ecology and conservation in our interactive programme where no day will be the same! Students will benefit from lessons and frequent interaction with experts in marine ecology including researchers and resident graduate students. Divers and non-divers are accepted into the programme.

Camp activities include underwater fish and coral ID classes, UV night dives and snorkels, lionfish dissections, an island-wide scavenger hunt, beach bonfires, and so much more!
